

Please do not relax any of the current regulations that limit the number of media, print or broadcast, that may be owned by a single entity. This will seriously degrade the quality of political and social debate that takes place in this country. For any democracy to be self-sustaining and maintain the ability to fend off attack from extremist fringe groups or rogue presidents there must be unfettered and unlimited media access representing the entire political spectrum. If a few corporations own all of the major media outlets you can bet that political discourse in this country will be stifled. Do not be swayed by their countless lobbyists who will attempt to hide the fact that the corporations they represent have only one in mind: profit. They have no other motive whatsoever. The airwaves belong to the people, long live public/community/listener-supported radio!
